Starting a Food Business

Food business expert Amy Bracco will explain the steps involved in starting a food based business including guidelines for food safety, quality assurance, food inspection protocols, labelling, and government regulations. The session will also cover food product development and general information about how to market and promote commercial-scale products. Amy will answer questions about specific food industries and business ideas and will help to get your culinary business growing in the right direction.

Registration closes on January 25.
